

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a tool for producing expanded camshafts. According to the invention, said tool comprises at least one modular dye which is made up of segments (9) which are joined together and which are provided with opposing slides (32, 37) for centering and aligning the cams around the axis (16) of the shafts.